

The Greater Philadelphia Diaper Bank

...help a friend

Why?

- Food assistance programs such as food stamps and WIC don't cover diapers.
- Diapers average a cost of $100 a month for 8 to 10 diapers a day.
- Parents in distressed circumstances have to make difficult choices between purchasing diapers, paying bills, or buying groceries.
- Daycare facilities often require that parents provide disposable diapers to meet the needs of their children.
- Cloth diapers require access to laundry facilities. Most laundromats don't allow patrons to use machines to wash diapers.

The Greater Philadelphia Diaper Bank is a nonprofit that partners with other nonprofits and agencies working with families and individuals in need. Through community diaper drives, we collect diapers and distribute them to homeless shelters, food pantries, family service agencies and faith based organizations.
